Predictive Services: Basil	HIGH RISK for scattered thunderstorms on Friday over Northeast NV HIGH Risk for increasing thunderstorms this weekend across Northern NV, Southern ID, and Northern UT. Monsoon moisture continues across the southern and eastern Great Basin producing scattered showers and wet thunderstorms across southern NV and Eastern UT and the AZ Strip again today. There has been wetting rain across much of this region over the past few days. Thunderstorm coverage will decrease Fri/Sat before increasing again on Sunday. Friday there will be some isolated thunderstorms over the Sierra Front, northern half of NV, S ID, and N UT, however coverage right now looks fairly isolated. Moisture increases further this weekend with greater lightning coverage Saturday over the northern half of NV into SW ID, then shifting into the central and eastern half of NV, N UT, and SE ID on Sunday. We have issued High Risk for much of this area. Typical light to moderate winds expected across the Great Basin. However, some enhancement of the Zephyr winds along the Sierra Front may occur through Thursday with SW-W wind gusts 25-30 mph at times. Winds will increase further by Monday with low RH over W NV and High Risk has been issued for these conditions.
